FRANCE AND ITALY ACCEPT LIMITATION ON CAPITAL SHIPS

Presentation of Details of French Proposals as to Auxiliary Craft, Including Submersibles, Awaits Full Instructions From France.

BRITISH READY FOR FIGHT ON SUBMARINES

Statement Preliminary to Possible Open Discussion Withheld Until French Figures Are Cleared Up on All Points.

TRAFFIC DELAYED, SEVERAL HURT ON ICE

Rain Which Froze as It Fell Made Operation of Autos Early in Day Difficult.

Rain which fell last night and this morning and froze on the streets and on nearly everything it touched, made traffic conditions extremely difficult in the forenoon and caused many workers to be late, as well as causing numerous accidents.

Many automobile drivers had to abandon their machines, or because of the slippery pavements, or because of broken wheels and similar difficulties, so that street cars were more crowded than usual. This extra car traffic and slippery rails caused street cars to move slowly and increased the delays.

Horses had a perilous time. Some drivers were seen tying sacks about the hoofs of their animals. An ice wagon skidded just like an automobile at Spring avenue and West Pine boulevard, breaking a wheel.

Pedestrians, too, moved with difficulty and frequently took to the gutters, where the ice was not so bad. Falls were frequent, however, until another meeting at 3 o'clock.

The French delegation, it was said, was not ready at the morning session to proceed with the discussion of the auxiliary tonnage, as they had not received instructions from their government. The delegation said it was hoped to have the instructions for the afternoon meeting.

The British delegation, which had planned to state its case in opposition to submarines as a naval armament, withheld its statement at the morning session, which was said to have been confined largely to preliminary general discussion and the clearing up of the capital-ship ratio.

Admiral de Bon, the French naval expert, presented the statement for France, in accepting the American capital ship proposal.

For Italy, Senator Schanzer made a statement urging that Italy be entitled to a capital ship tonnage equal to that of France, and on behalf of the Italian delegation, expressed assent to the American proposal as applied to France.

Communiqué Issued.

The following communiqué was issued:

"A joint meeting of the Committee on Limitation of Armaments and the subcommittee on naval armament was held this morning, Dec. 22, in the Pan-American Building. The chairman extended an invitation to the committee members what had taken place in the subcommittee on naval limitation and a general discussion followed. The meeting adjourned until 3 o'clock this afternoon."

Although what opposition the French estimates may encounter cannot be anticipated in the absence of the authoritative disclosure of the figures, it has been determined to present the question of fixing the ratio in smaller vessels for France, with the capital ship tonnage set aside, is generally viewed as holding little possibility of prolonged controversy.

British Plan for Fight.

The British delegates have prepared a full statement of their position, which probably will be made public after it has been laid before the committee.

Unless there is an agreement to the British view, there probably will be a public session of the conference later for general discussion of the subject.

Although apparently not intending to press their request for abolition of the submarine to the point of greatly prolonging the conference, the British delegates are known to be prepared to make a stubborn stand at least for a great reduction in the submarine tonnages suggested in the original American limitation plan.

"Fair Thing to Do."

The French are thought to want to fight cruisers, torpedo boat destroyers and submersibles a total in the neighborhood of 300,000 tons, of which some 65,000 or 70,000 tons would be submarines.

M. Barrat, head of the delegation, receiving correspondents last night, was told that the attitude of the French delegations in the direction of waiving the strict application of uniform percentages for several Powers between capital ship tonnage and that of lighter vessels.

"I am pleased to hear that," he replied, "and it does not surprise me. That seems to be a very fair thing to do."

OPPOSITION IN SENATE TO PACIFIC TREATY GROWING

Majority of Democrats Are Against It, and Some Republicans Show Intention to Vote for Rejection.

MAY BE ATTACKED AS "SECRET" WORK

President Likely to Voice
His Answer Through Underwood; Talk Made of Reservations.

By DAVID LAWRENCE,
A Special Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1921.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—The majority of the Democrats in the United States Senate are opposed to present to the ratification of the four-Power pact between the United States, Great Britain, Japan and France, with respect to the islands of the Pacific.

Until Senator Oscar Underwood, Democratic leader, and member of the American delegation which signed the treaty, has an opportunity to express his views, there will be no formal opposition to the pact. If the treaty were submitted to a vote today it would pass by comfortable margin notwithstanding the Democratic opposition, as for the moment the lineup is hardly different from that which developed when the last treaty with Germany was ratified.

The foregoing analysis of the situation comes from Democratic leaders who have the highest respect and affection for Senator Underwood, but who insist that it was a mistake for him to sign a treaty phrased as ambiguously as they believe is the four-Power pact. Opposition to the treaty was not very pronounced at the outset. But the unmistakable fact is that the developments of the last two days have been harmful to the treaty's prospects.

Opposition Growing.

President Harding's misconception of what the treaty covered has been responsible for the split in Democratic ranks and the growing opposition among Republicans. Even the most ardent supporter of the President will concede that the situation has hardly been improved by the discussion over the fact of the treaty covering the mainland of Japan.

Already there is talk of reservations to "clarify," but Senator Lodge is reported in San Francisco as having said that any reservations would "ruin the treaty." The Democrats who are unalterably opposed to the pact, even with reservations, are bound to make the most of Senator Lodge's attitude if this should prove to be his ultimate conclusion, for it was Lodge who insisted upon a long series of reservations to the Versailles treaty and contended that President Wilson's attitude was the result of the Senate's attitude in the round robin which was circulated just after the covenant was published. To this the Democratic leaders reply that no opportunity was given for study of the text of the Pacific treaty before it was signed and that the measure was negotiated in secret session. The Democratic plan as one step in their campaign against the treaty to call for the protection of the seas in order to keep in other things the American delegation may have agreed to besides the interpretation that the mainland of Japan was covered in the pact.

Underwood's Position.

To this sort of tactics, it is not only probable but most likely that President Harding will answer through Oscar Underwood. Democratic leader, who is a member of the American delegation, is presumed to be aware of everything that transpired. Underwood will therefore be in the position of defending the administration and acting as its spokesman in lining up Democratic votes.

Ireland's Army Small.

Ireland, continued Mulcahy, had a power, a republic, a national independence, in Ireland larger than a garrison of 10,000 men. She had but a small force—far too small to make resistance possible by the people for many years, but certainly not sufficient to win a war of internal liberation.

Mulcahy, in opposing the treaty, said he had no alternative, and he saw no alternative to acceptance.

Supporters of Treaty More Optimistic After Yesterday's Debate.

For the first time there was a division yesterday in the part of certain members of the Dail supporting the treaty to predict definitely that it would be ratified. The character of the applause and the remarks of the speakers tended to support this prediction.

Johnson Probable Supporter.

Senator Johnson of California, Republican, is in his native State now, keeping his ear to the ground there. Democratic Senators think Johnson will support the treaty in order to assure himself of administration support in his campaign for re-election next year, as there have

Irish Prisoners Being Freed After Signing of Anglo-Irish Treaty

Text of Article 2 of the Pacific Treaty

THE text of Article 2 of the four-Power Pacific treaty, varying interpretations of which have given rise to the controversy on the question of whether the United States is pledged to go to war to preserve the territorial integrity of the Japanese homeland, follows:

"If the said rights (rights in relation to the four Powers' insular possessions and insular dominions) in the region of the Pacific Ocean are threatened by the aggressive action of any other Power, the high contracting parties shall communicate with one another fully and frankly, in order to arrive at an understanding as to the most efficient measures to be taken, jointly or separately, to meet the exigencies of the particular situation."

been rumors of Herbert Hoover entering the race against Johnson.

The outlook is not as bright as it was for the four-Power treaty. Opposition to the reservations will be demanded. The difference in the ultimate, however, will rest upon Mr. Harding's attitude, for if he remains uncompromising on reservations, the treaty will fall. But as seems more likely, if he accepts clarifying reservations, the chances are that after long debate the treaty will be ratified.

planned of the possible social influence on Irish girls of the Government's court at the Vice Regal Lodge. What he contended was that the great value of the treaty was that it would remove from Ireland the most important source in which the young girls of Ireland were subjected—the English Garrison.

Patrick O'Malley of Galway, in a 15-minute speech in Irish, supported the treaty for what he said was good in it.

Mrs. Tom Clarke, whose husband was executed after the Easter rebellion in 1916, in opposing the treaty, said she would support it only if it were accepted by her colleagues in the Seanad.

Richard Mulcahy, in his speech in favor of the treaty, said he had suggested ways of avoiding a split among the Dail members, but that his suggestions had not been accepted.

Cosgrave, who is really the principal administrator of Dublin City, spoke with much pathos of the misery of 20,000 Dublin families, each of whom lived in one room, and suggested the desirability of leaving the decision to the Irish people, who had the best right to determine their own future.

Miss MacSwiney spoke passionately for a republic, denouncing repeatedly that the idea of a republic was dead. She asked for a plebiscite of the women on the question of a republic, saying that the women and children of Ireland would continue to stand for it, even if the men turned their backs on it.

Miss MacSwiney attacked Premier Lloyd George and the British press, including the American press, which she said was unfair to the republican cause.

Ireland, he said, was asked to abandon her brethren of the North "in the same loathsome way" as the British had agreed to abandon their friends in the South to what their Ministers had called "the murder gang."

Most of the members had remained, said Mrs. Clarke, but they were entering the British Empire with heads up, while others said it was with heads down. What he said was, "Hands off the republic."

to decide? There were loud cries of "Yes."

"Well, if we have got that far we may still find a common ground. If the people speak, we should let them have their way."

Says People Favor Treaty.

William Cosgrave, one of the most active and popular members of the Dail, who is in close touch with millions throughout Ireland and is regarded as knowing well the trend of public sentiment, strongly advocated ratification of the treaty, stating a great majority of the Irish people favored acceptance.

Cosgrave, who is really the principal administrator of Dublin City, spoke with much pathos of the misery of 20,000 Dublin families, each of whom lived in one room, and suggested the desirability of leaving the decision to the Irish people, who had the best right to determine their own future.

SAYS POWERS WOULD AMEND ST. GERMAIN PACT

IF U. S. WOULD RATIFY IT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—

By the Associated Press

HERE the United States to ratify the convention which Frank Polk signed, in its name, in St. Germain, France, in September, 1919, to prohibit the shipment of war material from one country to another as a means of securing peace.

British arms conference delegates believe a long step forward would be taken towards attaining one of the objects of the conference.

The British have in mind the possibility that large stocks of materiel from war might be shipped by a country party to limitation of armaments agreement into another country to build ships and equip armies.

A British spokesman has suggested that if some details of this treaty were found objectionable to America, he had no doubt the other signatories would cheerfully consent to its amendment.

This is true because the treaty

carries no pledge by the signatory

Powers to go to war in defense of the territorial integrity of the area covered. The question of the extent of that area is academically and politically interesting in view of the sudden prominence given it by the President's inopportune remarks at his meeting with the Japanese delegates.

Assumption Angers Delegates.

If additional evidence is needed to show the non-military character of the Pacific underwriting, one can see behind the record to the explicit utterances of the American delegates to newspaper men. One delegate whose name may not be used, was brought to anger verging on tears

by the assertion in a published news paper that the United States had given a "guarantee" to Japan.

"We have agreed to respect Japan," he said. "Why should we be afraid of that? Do we intend to invade

Japan?" But we have guaranteed absolutely nothing.

Hydrogen questions of all sorts have been raised by the newspaper writers in their talks with American spokesmen. Yesterday George

Kapp, 26 years old, serving a life sentence in the State Penitentary from St. Louis for murder, was paroled today by Gov. Hyde and will be released Christmas eve, in time for the meeting in responsible

Japanese circles.

If the Senate deals with the pact on its merits, it will vote it up or down without regard to the controversy which has arisen over the interpretation of the words "insuльous possessions and insular do-minations" in article one. Unfortunately for the administration, the interpretation of the words "insular possessions and insular dominions" is not clear.

These are the two words to be understood in the first article of the treaty. The "rights" of the contracting parties in the Pacific region are to be "respected."

Since the United States has no intent of invading Japan, and since the treaty carries no obligation whatever to Japan, the American delegates have given the Reed-Borah opposition a "talking point," which it doubtless will use to the utmost

in the fight against ratification.

Basis of Opposition.

This opposition is predicated on

Requested by Japanese.

Interpretation was not asked by the Japanese. It was originally proposed by the British and agreed in unanimously by representatives of the four powers. Set out to make a treaty

ECONOMIC PARLEY BY U. S., GERMANY, ALLIES AND RUSSIA TO BE UNDERTAKEN

Lloyd George and Briand
Fail at London Meeting,

German Reparations.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Although the State Department today is without advice of the plan to formulate a commission for the rehabilitation of Central Europe, other than that contained in press dispatches from London, it was said that George Harvey, Ambassador to London, and America's representative on the Allied Supreme Council would attend the meetings at Cannes on Jan. 4 as an observer. Possible action by this Government in regard to reparations and economic rehabilitation would depend upon the attitude of President Harding after receiving Harvey's report, it was said.

Leahy a few months ago declined an appointment as a member of the State Tax Commission on the ground that his law practice would not permit him to serve.

Since he has been mentioned as a possible successor to Moore he has declined to make a definite statement as to whether he would serve ing been taken of the entire landscape, including Turkey.

Foreign Ministers to Meet.

What the Cannes conference would be followed, he said, by a meeting of the Foreign Ministers of France, Italy and England in Paris in the middle of January to decide upon the future of Turkey and the Near East generally. Finally, if things go well, a general European conference would follow in two or three months.

Premier Briand declined to enlarge upon the Anglo-French financial impasse over reparations, but it is clear the votes of Italy and Belgium will be necessary before the Anglo-French can pursue a common policy toward the remainder of Europe. He said he was not discontented with the results in London, but added it is clear that the submarine question in Washington has had an important effect on the London conference.

Ambassador Harvey visited the French Premier at the Carlton Hotel last evening and handed him a further communication from Secretary Hughes, which correspondents were told included a letter of thanks to next meeting."

The discussions held by the Premiers, it was learned, extended beyond German reparations, including methods of rehabilitating Germany economically.

The question of the restoration of Austria and the possibility of bringing Austria within the counsels of the nations were also broached.

Course to Be Decided.

It was decided that the best course to pursue would be to suggest to the Supreme Council that it ask the Powers in position to render the necessary assistance to appoint a competent commission to devise a comprehensive plan of dealing with the difficulties.

With the Supreme Council will be the decision as to whether the Anglo-French alliance has been side-tracked for the present, although Lloyd George may show himself liberal minded in the event of France showing definite signs of marching with the new spirit and determination that the British Government had been searching the robbers went

Interesting Anecdotes by and About Watterson

WATTERSON has related that he refused to believe that any such plan was seriously considered. The administration was beginning, James G. Blaine informed him, after a dinner, that the general idea of the administration was planning a third-term campaign. Watterson, unable to believe the statement, consulted Senator Oliver P. Morton of Indiana, who told him it was true. Watterson sent the story to the Courier-Journal next day, but added the qualifying sentence:

"There may sound queer to the ear of the country, they may have visited me in my dreams, they may, indeed, have come to me between the sherry and the champagne, but nevertheless I do aver that they are buzzing about here in the minds of many serious and not unimportant persons."

Watterson related that he was ridiculed for this announcement of the third-term plan, and that peo-

Col. Watterson had won the dinner wager.

In a letter to the New York World, written last February, Watterson proposed the formation of a new party, and proposed as its platform, "All debts payable in gold and silver, and paper convertible into coins on demand. No taxation to hell with prohibition, along with the Hapsburgs and Hohenlohrs, and a tariff for revenue only."

During the League of Nations discussion, early in 1920, Watterson wrote to Senator Reed of Missouri, endorsing utterances of Reed, whom he had heard in Jacksonville, Fla.

"There is but one word which the proposes League of Nations which I approve—the word 'peace' and, as immediately follows, the word 'safety.'

Col. Watterson's letter said:

"The League is an iridescent dream.

As far as we are concerned, it tickles

the ear to palter with the sense of the country. We have everything to lose and nothing to gain by hitching

on our side."

"We should say to the beleaguered across the Atlantic: 'Behold

in the United States a true and symmetrical friend. When you in-need call upon us, we will feed and clothe you. We will pray for you. But we will not play politics nor talk diplomatics with you.

America furnishes us quite a sufficiently to do. Shiny on your own side of the ocean and we will shiny

on our side."

Col. Watterson was an important

Wendell Willkie, then Governor of

New Jersey, and George Harvey,

then editor of Harper's Weekly, earlier in Wilson's campaign for the presidential nomination.

Gov. Wilson, in a conversation at the Manhattan Club, New York, with

Col. Watterson, complained that Harvey's support of him, in the West, was having a serious effect in the West, where it was believed that Harvey represented the "interests." Harvey promised to "sing

low," and Watterson commented,

"Yes, that's the only thing to do.

The power of silence is very great.

For myself, I shall not say a word for the present."

Watterson later engaged in a controversy with Wilson over Watterson's statement that he had been authorized to raise money for Wilson's campaign. Watterson insisted, and Wilson denied, that he had such authority. The controversy involved Senator T. C. of South

Carolina, and it caused a break between Wilson and Watterson. President Wilson received Col. Watterson

at the White House, and friendly personal relations were restored.

Watterson's course in letters and ordealism in the national capital was interrupted just as he attained his majority by the outbreak of war.

With his father, he opposed the secession movement, but upon the declarations of war, he resigned from the Confederate army.

PEOPLE SUPPORT HIM,
E. MONT REILY SAYS

Porto Rican Governor Tells Dinner Party Here Complaints Originated With Politicians.

Gov. E. Mont Reily of Porto Rico was the guest of Jacob L. Babler, Republican National Committee man, at dinner at the Hotel Jefferson last night. Mayor Kiel, Dr. E. B. Clements, chairman of the Republican State Committee; "Loy" Morse of Eureka Springs and a number of city and St. Louis County politicians made up the party. Reily stopped here on his way to Kansas City, his home town.

In a talk to the dinner guests Gov. Reily said the people of Porto Rico were with him and that the complaints against the administration had originated with politicians in the territorial Legislature. Since he has been in Porto Rico, he said, 16,000 American flags have been bought by Porto Ricans, 10 times the number formerly owned there.

Reily told of his work in connection with the raising of a fund of $25,000 for a hospital for lepers. He said a bubonic plague had been stamped out by the efforts of health officers.

The Porto Rican who recently called on Secretary of War Weeks, to make a complaint against him, Reily said, were asked by the Secretary to file formal charges and had failed to do so.

As to a story that he gave offense at a social gathering by removing his coat to display a silk shirt, Gov. Reily said he was in a group of men, and that, because of the heat, the host asked all to remove their coats. Those who wore suspenders replaced their coats before the women approached them. Another story to the effect that Gov. Reily required the Porto Ricans to salute his automobile was declared by him to be "a darned lie."

NEGRO, ONCE ACTING GOVERNOR OF LOUISIANA, DIES AT 84

Pinckney Benton Stewart Pinchback Also Elected to U. S. Senate From That State but Rejected.

By the Associated Press.
NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 22.—Pinckney Benton Stewart Pinchback, 84 years old, negro Lieutenant-Governor and acting Governor of Louisiana from Dec. 6, 1872, to Jan. 18, 1873, who died last night in Washington, will be buried in New Orleans.

Pinchback was a native of Macon, Ga., and during the Civil War was a member of the Corps d'Afrique, a unit of negro soldiers. He was a member of the negro and carpetbag Louisiana constitutional convention in 1865. When Oscar Dunn, negro Lieutenant-Governor under Wilmot, died in 1870, he was elected Lieutenant-Governor and president of the Senate.

When Womack was impeached in 1872, Pinchback became acting Governor until Kellogg took office. In 1872 he was a candidate at large for Congress and received 10,000 votes and announced his election. Gen. George A. Sheridan contested his election and the case was finally decided March 2, 1874, in favor of Sheridan. Sheridan assumed his office for one day, as the following day the term expired.

Meanwhile the Legislature in 1873 elected Pinchback to the United States Senate, but after a long contest the Senate rejected him.

He moved to New York several years afterward and was a United States Marshal there. He later moved to Washington, where he practiced law.

4 ALIENISTS SAY WOMAN WHO KILLED PHYSICIAN IS INSANE

Attorneys for Mrs. Lilian S. Balzen Say Their Will Apply to Court for Commission in Lunacy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—Four alienists who examined Mrs. Lilian S. Balzen reported yesterday that she was insane when she killed Dr. Abraham Glickstein, Dec. 3, and is still insane.

The report was made by Dr. G. Isham Harris, superintendent of the Brooklyn State Hospital for the Insane; Dr. Edward E. Hicks, visiting physician on mental diseases at the Kings County Hospital; Dr. Charles W. Puglisi, formerly president of the State Hospital Commission and Dr. George E. Kirby, director of the psychiatric institute of the New York State Hospitals. It was given to the attorneys for Mrs. Balzen and was unanimous.

The lawyers said they will apply in the Kings County Court for a commission in lunacy. Should this report show her insane she will be committed to the State Hospital for the criminal insane by a court order. District Attorney Lewis said he will not oppose the appointment of a commission.

MANY MINERS ARE DESTITUTE

Shutdown in Kentucky-Tennessee Field Causes Suffering.

By the Associated Press.
KNOKVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 22.—In the Kentucky-Tennessee coal fields between $500,000 and $600,000 miners are idle and thousands living in humble homes are deciding as a result of the suspension of mining operations during the past few months, E. L. Reed, secretary of District No. 19, United Mine Workers of America, said yesterday.

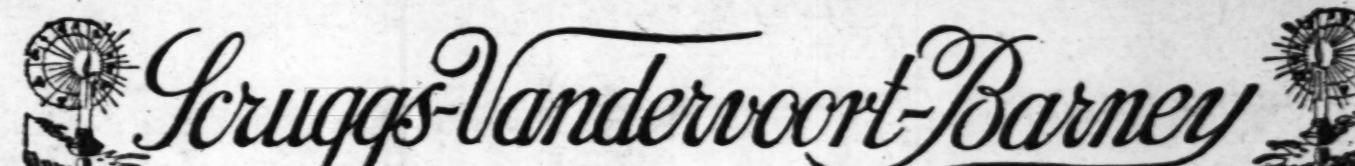

It is estimated by union officials that not more than 4000 miners are working in the local district.

Decreases in industrial activities and high demand for steam coal are attributed as the cause. At many points in the bituminous mining districts entire families are without nourishing food and sufficient clothing to prevent suffering.

Later, after he had retired as editor, he occasionally made contributions to the Courier-Journal's editorial page. On the approach of his sixtieth birthday, he wrote "A Self-Portrait in Photographic Form," being the last of his editorials, he wrote a variety of subjects, including woman suffrage and Woodrow Wilson. A few of woman suffrage, he said of those who favored it, that they regarded it as "an entering wedge"—spendy to turn loose of predilection that the Bible is a good book for the salvation of women and man. Under the Christian religion the world is a man's world of wrong, injustice and sin, he wrote. Watterson spoke in the public platform. His position as an orator reached its apex when he delivered an address at the dedication of the Columbian statue when he appeared as the spokesman of official spokesmen.

Author of Books

Among the several books he wrote were "Oddities of Southern Life and Character," a volume of Southern humor; "The Spanish-American War," written concurrent with the events, and his latest work, "Compromises of Life," a compilation of his lectures, addresses and numerous editorials from the Courier-Journal.

Of his career, Watterson said:

Excerpts From Watterson's Prize-Winning Editorial

UNDER the will of the late Joseph Pulitzer, owner of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World, provision was made in connection with the bequest establishing a school of journalism at Columbia University, New York City, for the award of a prize of $500 yearly for the "best editorial article written during the year, the test of excellence being clearness of style, moral purpose, sound reasoning and power to influence public opinion in the right direction." The trustees of the university in 1917 awarded the prize for that year to the Louisville Courier-Journal. The award was based upon two editorials, one called "Vae Victis," published April 7, 1917, and the other published April 10, 1917, entitled, "War Has Its Compensations." It developed after the award was made that both were written by Col. Watterson.

Extracts from the first-mentioned editorial showing Watterson's style follow:

bread and had to have it. When we began there were nine daily papers struggling for a footing in the little Tennessee capital. At the end of the year we had four, and at the end of two years had two-thirds of the business. After two years I was called to Louisville to take an editorial position on the old Louisville Journal; the paper of George D. Prentiss. Six months later Walter N. Haldeman, who owned the Courier, joined with me in combining the Journal and Courier. Incidentally this led to the purchase of the old Louisville Democrat, this publication losing its identity entirely. That is about all."

Courier-Journal Appeared in 1868.

The consolidation of the three papers was the result of the editor combination. It resulted in the first appearance of the Courier-Journal, Nov. 8, 1868.

In his early years he superintended the detail of every department and for more than 20 years "put the paper to press" every night.

In 1918 Watterson sold his interest in the Courier-Journal to Judge Robert W. Bingham of Louisville, who also purchased stock of other owners, and Watterson retired from editorial responsibility and placed accepting for several months the title of editor emeritus. In the spring of 1921 he sold his interest and since then he has been living wholly retired life, interrupted only occasionally by a letter to a newspaper or on a public topic or an interview to some roving reporter.

One example of his characteristic style is found in a letter written in October, 1921, regretting that age rendered inadvisable his attendance upon the Confederate reunion at Chattanooga.

"It cannot be long," he wrote, "when we shall meet on that battlefield again. I hope that the day will be sunny, the bonnie blue flag will be flying at the fore and the bands will be playing 'Dixie' on parade, whilst the pretty girls will be distributing 'The Chattanooga Rebel' to groups of ragged, red-nosed angels who have not forgotten the rebel yell."

He was born in Washington, D. C., Feb. 16, 1840.

Watterson Read Obituaries When Recovering From Previous Illness.

By the Associated Press.
LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 22.—Henry Watterson left Louisville three weeks ago for his annual pilgrimage to the south where for years he had spent the winter. Apparently he was in his usual health, which, however, for several years had not been good.

News of his death was received with many evidences of grief in Louisville, where for more than 50 years, he had been a notable figure. Once, before launching an operation, he said to the managing editor of the Courier-Journal:

"I am prepared at any time to surrender my life to God, who gave it. We do not know about these things and I face the outcome with serenity, whatever it may be. It is a perilous thing for a man in his 73rd year to submit to the surgeon's knife, but I am ready for it and all that may follow."

While convalescing from a previous illness, Mr. Watterson consented to read some advance obituaries of himself and wrote this:

"I am prepared to go to my own funeral—sitting up in the grave, as it were, and reading the obituaries—and 'grinning at the boys,' but very cheerful and grateful. It is kind o' nice—heaps better than being saddled with motives, and called names."

Ambassador Harvey Pays Tribute to Col. Watterson.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Dec. 22.—American Ambassador Harvey commenting today on the death of Henry Watterson, said:

"The death of Col. Watterson marks the end of a marvelous American career. He was one of the most talented and versatile of men and a more loyal friend never lived. The loss to his country and to the thousands who loved him is immeasurable."

WAR RULES COMMITTEE WOULD GET VIEWS OF ALL NATIONS

Conclusion Reached That It Would Be Impractical for Conferring Nations to Make Agreement Alone.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—The committee on rules of warfare of the armament conference is understood to have reached the conclusion today that it is impracticable to formulate binding rules in this respect, when so many nations are not represented at the present conference.

The committee has decided, it is understood, to recommend a systematic inquiry to develop the views of nations not participating in the conference.

The committee on gas warfare is said to have reached an impasse, partially as a result of American technical experts favoring the use of poisonous gases in war in opposition to the technical experts of other Powers.

The American advisory committee of which Gen. Pershing is a member, has recommended the abandonment of the use of poison gas in warfare, but other American experts have held that the use of gas is actually more humane than attacks by shells and machine guns.

AGAINST B. C. STEVENSCounty Prosecutor Plans Action Against Prisoner Due to Be Released Saturday.

Beverly C. Stevens, former St. Louis County real estate operator, who will finish serving a three-year prison term for embezzlement at Jefferson City, Christmas eve, and who had previously served another three-year term for forgery, will be held for prosecution on other of the remaining 71 indictments against him, Prosecuting Attorney Mueller of St. Louis County said today.

Mueller has asked the prison authorities to release Stevens before the expiration of his present sentence. He says he will prosecute as many of the remaining cases as he can find witnesses for.

Plea for Abatement Expected.
Hi procedure, he said, will depend upon what action Stevens takes. He thought it not unlikely that Stevens would file a plea to abate the other cases.

Stevens was convicted in the St. Louis Circuit Court on the embezzlement charge and in the St. Charles Circuit Court on the charge of forgery. The embezzlement was of a $1500 note from C. C. Sanders, a St. Louis florist.

Not all of the remaining cases are pending in St. Louis County. Some have gone to other counties on changes of venue.

73 Indictments Against Him.

The irregularities in Stevens' transactions were first discovered in 1914, and following many complaints from persons for whom he had handled property, 73 indictments were returned against him.

The prosecutorial authorities say Stevens has been a model prisoner. He has been employed in the prison commissary. He gets the full benefit of the three-fourths rule and the merit system in the duration of his term, his release coming after he has served seven-twelfths of his sentence.

GIRL BOOKKEEPER GIVES ACCOUNT OF CHASE OF ROBBERS

Touched Off Alarm, Then Ran for Auto as Soon as Men Were Out of Bank After Iuka Holdup.

LED PURSUIT FOR FIVE MILES

Then Took Officers, Whose Car Had Failed, in Her Machine—Robbers Abandoned Auto in Timber.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

IUKA, Ill., Dec. 22.—What Miss Mildred Kelly, 20-year-old bookkeeper at the State Bank of Iuka, can't see is why people are making such a fuss about her pursuit of the bandits who robbed the bank Tuesday afternoon of between $15,000 and $20,000 in cash and bonds. As she sees it, chasing bandits is all in the day's work of a bank bookkeeper and when she took after them in her automobile she was simply doing what any other 20-year-old girl, bookkeeper in a bank, would have done.

The episode, as she reluctantly relates it, needed all the doing, occurring after this fashion:

"I was sitting in the bank with my back to the door when I heard a man say 'Hands up.' Coming into the bank and saying 'Hands up' is all the rage among the Iuka jokers and I supposed it was another one and I did not take the trouble to look around. The order was repeated, with an oath, and I knew it was no joke. I turned and saw three men, each with a revolver. Two came inside the cage. The other stayed outside. The one who appeared to be the leader was composed and deliberate. When the others saw people gathering in front of the bank they urged him to hurry, but he just glanced carelessly at the people outside and told his men to be calm and take their time.

Ordered Them Into Vault.

"One of the men went to the small safe and took out the money and bonds. The leader told Mr. Holtshaw, the cashier, Mrs. Holtshaw, his assistant, and Roscoe Rogers, the janitor boy, and me to go into the vault and close the door. He then locked the gate, but it is hard to lock and he asked me how. I told him it was already locked. 'None of your impudence,' he said, and then, to the others, 'Let's go,' and they hurried out of the bank and jumped into their automobile, in which a man had remained at the wheel, and sped away.

"We came out of the vault and touched off the alarm bell on the outer wall of the bank and by the time that I got outside there was a crowd. I ran to my machine and called: 'Come on, let's go after them.' At first nobody responded. Then Clarence Hinderer, vice president of the bank, and Frank St. Clair jumped into the machine and Roscoe came running out of the bank with a revolver and handed it to me and we were off.

Had Engine Trouble.

"The robbers had driven toward the Lincoln trail, about a mile to the north. We took the same direction and at first met a woman in a buggy who said she had seen the machine had turned east. I drove east about five miles, when I had engine trouble and had to stop. Another machine, with Deputy Sheriff Pruden and four other men in it came up. They were having engine trouble, too. They helped me fix mine and three of the men got in my car and went on.

"We inquired of everybody we saw about the robbers' machine and were able to keep track of it. Once or twice the men with me said they caught sight of it, but I kept my eyes on the road. At the Clay County line we learned that they had turned north and we followed them two miles in that direction and about eight miles farther north headed for Doushaw in Clay County but turned into a by-road that led into the timber. This road soon became impassable, and they abandoned the machine and scattered.

Darkness Hampered Search.

"When we came upon the abandoned machine it was getting dark in the timber and we could not see the men. Two farmers who had been driving the machine drove into the timber and who knew that the road was impassable, came with lanterns. The men searched for the robbers the best they could in the growing darkness. Others arrived in machines. It was decided to guard the woods all night in the hope of preventing the robbers' escape. A house was built. At 8:30 I drove to Xenia for food for the watchers. Then I stayed until 1 a. m., but there was nothing that I could do, so I drove home and went to bed."

Miss Kelly did not mention that when she was calling for volunteers to go in pursuit of the robbers, her mother, who had been shopping in a nearby store, tried to dissuade her from such a dangerous proceeding, but without avail.

The girl was formerly a student at Lindenwood College and is athletic in inclination. She has been with the bank the last two years.

KRUPPS TO SELL STOCK TO WORKERS

Issue of 250,000,000 Marks Offered at Nominal Price—Company Making Big Profits.

SPECIAL CABLE TO THE POST-DISPATCH AND THE NEW YORK WORLD.

(Copyright, 1922, by the Press and Publishing Company of St. Louis, Mo., and the Post-Dispatch.)

BERLIN, Dec. 22.—Krupp, Germany's biggest industrial plant, with 99,000 workmen, decided at a meeting of directors to issue 250,000,000 marks in stock to the workmen at a nominal price. The offer is made at 110 for shares, when the company could get 1800 on the Bourse. Out of 225,000,000 marks in gross profits there are 97,000,000 net, of which only 4,000,000 will go into dividends, while 40,000,000 will go into improvements and 40,000,000 will go to Dutch bankers, plus interest to redeem stock hypothequed some time ago.

Apparently the company made more money than last year, when the gross profits were 159,000,000 marks and the net 75,000,000. The big difference between gross and net is due to income taxes, which cost the company 145,000,000 marks this year.

This new issue of 250,000,000 marks in stock is announced as a profit-sharing undertaking. All the remainder of the stock remains in the Krupp family. The new stock will be placed in trust with a committee representing the directors. It will be promised that it will be kept off the Bourse. To that end it probably will be held permanently in trust for the workmen who buy and who will get the dividends from it.

The company seems to be in good financial condition. It recently bought two coal mines and is specializing in two new products—steel as well as making metals proof against oxidation at high temperatures, and doesn't a high power steel. The works have present orders for 1400 locomotives for Russia. Turbine locomotives are turned out at the old cannon works, the company having bought the turbine patents of Dr. Zoelly of Zurich. The plant where the big Berthas were built is now making spinning machinery, ice cream freezers and miscellany. There are 53,000 workmen in the Essen works alone.

The same Vocalion that last Christmas sold for $95—a splendidly constructed, large cabinet of genuine mahogany. Tone is remarkably full, rich and clear. Universal tone-arm—plays all records. What a wonderful opportunity—with Christmas only two days away—not simply a phonograph, but actually a Vocalion at a price so very, very much less than you thought possible—and on the easiest terms imaginable. Just a small down payment, and the balance in payments as little as $4 monthly. Between 3000 and 4000 Workers in District Nov. 14 Are Reported Idle.

By the Associated Press.
PITTSBURG, Kan., Dec. 22.—Santa Claus is likely to be extremely partial in the Kansas mining field this year.

In the excitement of the present situation, which finds several troups set down amid the coal camps and dozens of men and women, traveling toward court to answer charges of disturbing the peace and order of the community, the merry old man of childhood time is likely to be considerably belittled.

A large number of miners have had no work for many weeks. Ordinarily 12,000 miners have worked in District No. 14. When Alexander Howat, the former president of the district union, went to jail Sept. 30 for violating a Kansas law, his followers stopped work. Miners who were not his followers stopped work too, and he was sick that day,
and they did not return.

The Mayor also complained that its complaint had reached him too late to be effective, unless it were shown that the law had been violated.

Buildings Virtually Up.

"If the action taken has been contrary to law," the Mayor said, "the city will join with you in the suit against the company, and will help you in every possible way. If the action taken has been legal, I don't see what is to be done, as the buildings are practically up."

The Mayor sent his secretary with members of the delegation to the City Councilor's office, to get an opinion as to the legality of what was done.

"Well, it was because some of the committee said you were just like

BURCH DEFENSE TO ADD ALIBI TO INSANITY PLEA

Witnesses Expected to Testify They Saw Him 15 Miles From Beverly Glen at Time of Killing.

INSANITY PHASE OF CASE RESUMED

Deposition of Mother States Uncle Was Once Asylum Inmate and That Cousin Was "Almost an Idiot."

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 22.—The defense of Arthur C. Burch, in the Kennedy murder trial had progressed far enough today to show that it was composed of an additional phase: an attempt to establish an alibi for Burch.

Counsel for Burch had witnesses expected to testify they had seen Burch in Eagle Rock, a suburb of Los Angeles, at the time the prosecution has fixed as that when Kennedy was shot down in Beverly Glen. Beverly Glen and Eagle Rock are only a few miles apart in an airplane, but at least 15 miles by road.

The first evidence today was against Dr. J. J. Finley's statement that he had removed a thorn from Burch's knee, in the county jail, just after Burch was returned from Las Vegas, Nevada, where he was apprehended a day or two after the shooting.

Reading of Deposition Resumed.

Afterward the reading of the deposition of Mrs. Dora M. Burch, mother of the defendant, was resumed. The deposition dealt with Burch's mental condition.

The insanity phase of the defense was started yesterday when Burch's counsel began reading depositions by the defendant's mother, his former wife, Mrs. Allie Gale Quayle, and her father, Bishop Matthew Quayle of St. Louis.

The other angle of the defense—a denial that Burch killed Kennedy—had apparently been completed, the defense asserted.

The depositions were to the effect that Burch showed signs of moral and mental changes from two to three years ago.

Following the depositions, the defense planned to call alienists and put to them a hypothetical question based upon statements in the depositions.

Mrs. Burch, in her deposition, testified her son told her wife had attempted to choke him and also attempted to kill him with a revolver. Mrs. Quayle denied she had done either of these things, though she had seen such charges embodied in a bill of divorce she said Burch had prepared, but never filed.

The mother said that Burch came to Evanston from Montana, where he was engaged in a ranching enterprise about two years ago, to attend the funeral of his grandmother. She said he formerly had shown great affection for his grandmother, but "showed no expressions of regret."

Lax in Financial Matters.

She also declared her son grew lax concerning financial matters and borrowed various sums from banks which she had to repay. His affection for herself and his father also seemed to lessen, she declared.

Regarding insanity of the family, she stated that one of her uncles had been confined in an insane asylum, that cousin was "almost an idiot" and that another cousin committed suicide.

Bishop Quayle, in his deposition, said that when Burch married his daughter in 1916 he was an "honest, industrious, Christian young man" and was a "gallant, courteous husband" until Christmas, 1919, when he noticed Burch became a heartless young man, immoral and unreliable as to travel expenses. He said that he had a conversation with his wife regarding his treatment of his wife and that he said to Burch:

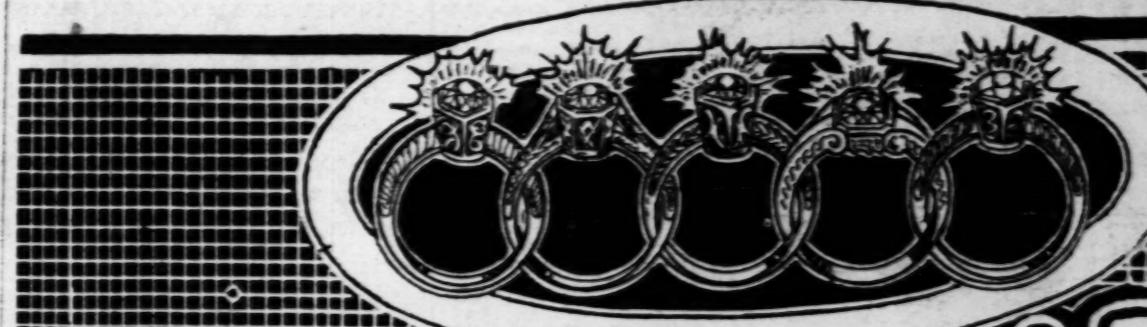

"The only charitable explanation I can think of is that you are insane," and that Burch replied, "I think you're right."

Early yesterday the defense aimed an attack at the testimony of a Pullman porter to the effect that Burch brought shotgun case to Los Angeles with him last July. Three fellow-passengers of Burch testified they did not see any of his baggage.

NEW AUTO FOR FIRE CHIEF
$30,000 for New Fire Apparatus Also Advised.

The Citizens Bond Issue Supervisory Committee yesterday notified Fire Chief Panner that it would at once recommend to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and to the Board of Aldermen the appropriation of approximately $40,000 to purchase a new automobile for the Chief's official use. Chief Panner for several years has been trying to induce city officials to replace his old machine.

The Citizens Committee yesterday also decided to recommend the appropriation of about $20,000 to buy new fire apparatus, including "pumpers" to take the place of old engines now in use.

WHISKY SEIZED IN RAID MISSING

Denver Police and City Officials Called Into Court to Explain.

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 22.—Chief of Police Williams, Police Captain Campbell and other city authorities were called into court yesterday in connection with the disappearance of 38 bottles of bottled in bond whisky confiscated by police in a raid Aug. 18. When the raid took place, 88 bottles were alleged to have been seized and turned over to a customman. Later, at a trial in connection with the case, 38 bottles are alleged to have been missing.

Judge Haggard, who ordered the city officials into court, declared after the hearing yesterday that the police officials are neither directly nor indirectly accused of responsibility for the alleged loss.

They were permitted to make statements, he said, only in order to allow them to clear their names of any doubt which might be held by either the Court or the public, he said.

Theatrical Journal in Russia.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—The first non-government paper to appear in Moscow was a theatrical journal. It contained many advertisements, the first of which the Bolshevik government has permitted. Several weeks ago, advertisements were appearing which did not issue by the government. Advertisements pay a tax of about 6000 rubles an acre line to the government.

Species Made Rare by Discharge of Ships Which Pollutes Shore Waters.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—The flight of a wild duck over the marshes of Great South Bay was ended recently by the crack of a gun aimed by George V. Hollins of Islip, L. I., president of the Long Island Game Protective Association.

The Association, which has been holding an annual conference of the American Game Protective Association, where it was prophesied that the dead duck would become as famous as the albatross shot by the Ancient Mariner.

The duck winged by Mr. Hollins served to call the attention of the American Game Protective Association to the fact that the deep-sea ducks which fed along our shores and in our bays are threatened with extinction by the oil pollution of these waters attributable to arriving and departing steamships.

The dead duck already had almost disappeared from these parts, according to Hollins, who said that they could be seen in flocks of 20,000 in Great South Bay a year or two ago, whereas now a generous estimate of their numbers would be hardly more than 25,000.

Erlinger Arrested on Complaint of an Indorser of $5000 Note.

Herbert C. Erlinger, 25 years old,

of 2910 North Twenty-second street, was arrested last night and taken to Belleville, his former home, on a charge of forgery. The arrest was made by the St. Louis police on the instance of T. J. Christmann of Belleville, a wall paper dealer.

Erlinger is the son of Joseph Erlinger of Freeburg, near Belleville.

He was in the grocery business in Belleville, and last summer, it is alleged, he concerned obtained a loan of $3000 from the Belleville Savings Bank, on a promissory note indorsed with the signatures of T. J. and Amandus Christmann and of Joseph Erlinger. The bank sent to recover the amount of the note and signature was given against the indorsees. The elder Erlinger swore that he had not indorsed the note, and that his signature of liability, and left the judgment standing against the Christmanns.

Erlinger came to St. Louis and went to work as a bookbinder for the Eden Publishing House. T. J. Christmann came here, hunted him up and asked that he be arrested. Christmann said he refused to endorse the note because he was first induced to do so by a man who would endorse it when Joseph Erlinger did. Soon after, he said, the note was brought to him with Joseph Erlinger's apparent indorsement.

AMERICAN POLO PLAYERS
MAY APPEAR ON THE RIVIERA

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.
CANNES, France, Dec. 1.—The prospects of the Riviera polo season are exceptionally bright this year, at least five or six teams probably will be formed.

One will be Capt. Philipps' English "foursome," which will consist of Maj. Hundall, Maj. Longworth, Lieutenant-Colonel George Philipps, and Capt. Philipps, all well known in tennis circles. It is expected that they will be matched against an American combination, headed by Stephen Standford.

Capt. Philipps has already 12 ponies at the stables at La Napoule, his brother, Lieutenant-Colonel Philipps, will bring nine and Maj. Longworth six.

Lord Rockavage will also be a player, so that some hard fought chukkers may be looked for.

FOR WOMAN'S DEATH

Inquest Shows Negro Had No Driving License and Said 'Brakes Wouldn't Work.'

A Coroner's jury investigating the death of Miss Florence Boas, 34 years old, a maid in the home of Elzy G. Burkham at 4567 Pershing avenue, who was struck by an automobile delivery truck Monday afternoon at Spring avenue and Lindell boulevard, today returned a verdict of criminal carelessness against William Warren, a negro 16 years old, driver of the truck. Warren is a schoolboy and drove the truck after school hours. He had no chauffeur's license. Miss Boas died at St. John's Hospital yesterday afternoon.

The testimony disclosed that Miss Boas was walking alone from north to south and that the truck was coming from the south and turned westward when it struck her.

Jeff Mackey, a negro boy who was riding with Warren, testified the view was unobstructed and he saw Miss Boas 10 feet away, and that Warren told him after the accident that the hit was an accident.

Warren, who lives at 2716 Lawton avenue and worked for the Cabanne Laundry, 2659 Pine street, was held under $5000 bond.

4 NEW CONSTITUTION
DELEGATES ARE NAMED

Republican Committees Nominate Men Agreed Upon by Politicians in Each Instance.

Republicans in four senatorial districts in St. Louis last night carried out plans agreed upon by the politicians who comprise the party senatorial committee, in the nomination of district delegates to the constitutional convention. Nomination is equivalent to election, the Constitution providing for two delegates from each district, each party being limited to one nomination. Those named were:

Thirty-first District—Louis E. Triester, 1624 Dolman street, a lawyer and former member of the Legislature.

Thirty-second District—J. L. London, a lawyer residing at the Claridge Hotel.

Thirty-third District—Frederick H. Ischmann of 2239 Dodier street, an employee of a paper company in the International Life Building.

Thirty-fourth District—Nicholas P. Zimmers of 4475 Evans avenue, a lawyer.

In the Twenty-ninth District Joseph J. Hauser, president of the Central Trades and Labor Union, was nominated Tuesday night by the Republicans. The Thirty-second District Republican meeting will be tonight at Eugene Field School, Taylor avenue and Olive street.

Myers B. Campbell, an attorney of Kirkville, was nominated by the Democrats of the Ninth District at a meeting at Macon yesterday afternoon.

NEGRO POSING AS CAPTAIN SWINDLES MANY OF HIS RACE

Obtains Large Sum at San Antonio Upon Promise of Providing Jobs.

By Associated Press.
SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 22.—Military authorities here are searching for a negro who for the past month has been posing as an army captain and who is said to have swindled several hundred negroes out of approximately $5000 given to him on promises of jobs he would obtain when he established a reluimbursement center here. The negro used the name of Capt. Benjamin H. Mosby.

"Mosby" first became known here Nov. 17, when he told negroes that he was a Government official and that he would soon take charge of six Government warehouses. The negroes gave him sums from $7 to $40, which they say will never return. "Mosby" also promised to obtain "back pay" due some of the negroes by the Government.

According to information in the hands of the military police, the pseudo officer left here Tuesday night on a northbound train. Efforts to locate him at stations along the route of that train thus far have failed.

MAN KILLED, ANOTHER HURT WHEN LOCOMOTIVE HITS TRUCK

Freight Car on Wabash Sidetrack at Wright City Said to Have Obstructed Driver's View.

W. C. Hickey of St. Louis was killed and Charles Tutsch of 2878 South Seventh street was seriously injured when the locomotive of a Wabash passenger train struck and overturned a loaded truck on which the two were riding at Wright City, Lincoln County, 53 miles from St. Louis, at 5 o'clock last evening.

Tutsch was taken to St. Charles and Hickey's body was taken to an undertaking establishment in St. Charles. The two were hauling a load of furniture at the time of the accident. A freight car on a sidetrack kept them from seeing the approaching train, which was a passenger train, bound for St. Louis.

Physicians at the hospital said that Tutsch had a good chance to recover. He is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Herstikka, living at the South Seventh street address. Hickey's St. Louis address was not learned.

GEOLOGIST SAYS ALABAMA QUARTZ MAY YIELD GOLD

Requires That Samples From Lamar County Be Pulverized and Panned.

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—That gold may be contained in the quartz formation found in Lamar County, is the statement made by State Geologist Eugene S. Smith. Smith, in a report on a number of samples of ore sent to him by Miles C. Allgood, Commissioner of Agriculture, for analysis, says: "The larger piece of quartz with the slightly yellowish cast may possibly carry some gold, which, however, does not show to the eye. It might be worth while to pound this material up and have it panned for gold. It should then be an worth mentioning, it would show up in the panning."

In regard to several dark blue specimens submitted, Smith stated that they were manganese ore, which, as it contained less than 20 per cent manganese, would not be readily marketable.

PROTEST IS FILED BY PANAMA

Leasing and Renting Measures of Governor Criticized.

By the Associated Press.
PANAMA, Dec. 22.—Foreign Secretary Garay has protested to the United States against the measures adopted by Gov. Jay M. Nease of the Canal Zone in leasing lands for agricultural purposes and renting houses in the canal territory to non-employees.

The Panama Government claims that this is in violation of the Hay-Aratta treaty of 1903 and the agreement reached under President Taft's administration, which requested that Congress repeal these measures, which he says, are prejudicial to Panamanian interests.

VERDICT LEAVES OPEN CAUSE OF MAN'S DEATH AT BOWLING ALLEY

Enough Cyanide to Cause Death Found in Stomach of Henry C. Cramer.

An open verdict was returned today by Deputy Coroner Fath following an inquest into the death of Tutsie Cramer, 27 years old, of 5651 Wells avenue, and in whose stomach was found cyanide of potassium in quantity sufficient to cause death. Testimony in the case was heard yesterday.

Friends who were bowling with Cramer testified he was apparently in good shape, having taken a walk from the rack when he fell to the floor, expiring in a few minutes. No one saw him take the drug and the Coroner could not determine how it was administered.

The cause of Cramer's death was not known until a report of Dr. F. W. Abeken yesterday showed that an analysis of the viscera had disclosed cyanogen.

Among Cramer's effects at the Coroner's office is a gold ring set with a cameo, which he told the jeweler from whom he purchased it was to be a Christmas present for his sweetheart. Cramer was a note-teller at the Lafayette-South Side Bank.

AGREEMENT GIVES CARUSO'S DAUGHTER SHARE IN ESTATE

Widow's Attorney Announces Child Will Receive Half of Property Valued at $500,000 Live.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—An agreement among the relatives of Enrico Caruso, by which the tenor's baby daughter, Gloria, is to receive one-half the estate and $100,000 live (normally $100,000) has been announced by his widow, Margherita.

The agreement has been approved by the Court of Naples, the lawyers declared in a statement, and the administration and distribution of the estate is proceeding under its terms. The legal steps taken here, the statement continued, were merely to have Mrs. Caruso appointed administratrix to collect assets in the State of New York for New York creditors and to turn over the surplus to the Italian estate to be disposed of according to the agreement of all parties. All parties, it asserted, are working in harmony.

Four highwaymen constitute the editorial and mechanical force of The Clarion. Richard C. Grey, serving a sentence from Kansas City, is editor of the new publication. The mechanical work will be done by James F. O'Brien of St. Louis, Harrel Field Korn of Kansas City and Harrel Frank of Clay County. All the convicts have been invited to contribute to the paper.

INSTALLATION OF PLAYGROUND EQUIPMENT BEING COMPLETED

New Material Costing About $500 Provided by Police Boxing Commission.

Installation of equipment in the new playground on Clark avenue, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, is being completed, in preparation for the opening of the playground Sunday morning. It is to be used by the children of the neighborhood at certain times of the day, and at other times by juvenile inmates of the House of Detention.

Judge Garber, president of the Juvenile Court, who has been active in behalf of the Papa Club, in bringing about the installation of the new playground, announced today that the playground equipment, new material to the value of about $500, was being provided by the Boxing Commission of the Police Department, from its fund for juvenile recreation purposes. The commission is headed by Judge Robert W. Hall.

C. F. Blanke Gives Instructions That Such Applicants Receive Attention at Once.

Any women or children who may seek relief in the bread line at the C. F. Blanke Sales Co., Seventh street and Clark avenue, will be shown special consideration and permitted to enter without taking their places in the line.

C. F. Blanke, president of the company, said instructions also had been given the attendants to help out with bread, coffee and tea any applicant who has a family in need and wishes to take the food home.

ACQUITTED OF LIQUOR CHARGE

Jury in Federal Court Finds East St. Louisman Not Guilty.

Joe Ykubin of 1216 Winestreet avenue, East St. Louis, was acquitted by a jury in the Federal Court at East St. Louis of a charge of violating the prohibition law by having moonshine and whisky on his premises.

Federal enforcement officers testified he found several jugs containing liquor in a corner of Ykubin's yard, and that some was scattered over the yard. Ykubin denied that his wife made the mash of corn and barley to feed to some geese she was fattening. He said he knew nothing about the jugs of liquor.

Squire to Visiting Dames New Calling in New York

Instructors at Dance Hall Teach Late Steps and Escort Women to Entertainments.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—New York has many night workers who earn their livelihood by providing opportunities of amusement for the dowdies, the ladies in hats and among those who follow the White Light path of effort to provide the luxuries there is one who is almost unique. His business is that of acting as dancing partner and entertainment escort for unattached women, especially those from out of town. He is not a lounge lizard—one of those plumed-haired youths who run the cabaret stage, especially as dancing instructors and "booties" or seal in "coke" by day. Nor is he a hanger-on, in corseted dinner jacket and razor-edged trousers, in the so-called dancing academies of Broadway.

There are only a half dozen of these Squires of Dames, of many dames and also damoisels, in the metropolis, for the type is born, not made, and the squire's peculiar physical equipment and rather unusual traits. Conservatism in dress and demeanor are two of the most prominent characteristics, are in fact second to their foot work in the rating of their assets. Their services are not sought by the flapper or the women who habitually feed on the jazz of the cabaret rather than its menu. They are in demand, and the demand exceeds the supply, from the many lone women, young and middle-aged, who seek relaxation. In dancing can get it for a nominal sum without binding themselves to pay for the entire course. Here the Squire of Dames is an instructor, a purely nominal position which opens the door to those activities which give him a life of leisure, entertainment and a good income. The vis-à-vis is his as an instructor, because his badge tells her so. He is modestly but carefully dressed in business garb. Posted notices inform her that his instruction charge will be whatever she chooses to give him in addition to the regular fee charged for dancing. He collects a small commission from the management for each dance.

In most cases he is purely businesslike and impersonal; he asks her if she cares to dance or wishes instruction. She does. She finds him a patient and skillful instructor with a manner which impresses her as placing him a shade above the position he occupies. She does not know that, with the carefulness born of experience, he has picked her as a likely payer and that she fails to meet his expectations he will be too busy to give instruction to her on the morrow. He gives his attention only to those who reward him with a fee not less than $1. The instruction continuing, the time comes when the woman feels that she can dance at a hotel supper or cabaret or a society ball without exciting pity for her clumsiness. Her feet itch to foot it on some such floor.

Women Stay at Good Hotels.
These women stay at the best of New York's hotels, are well supplied with money and not infrequently are of high social standing at home. They may, it is true, obtain instruc-

WILL OF MRS. MASTERS FILED

The will of Mrs. Emma Josephine Masters, who was killed Tuesday by jumping or falling from an eighth-story window of the Majestic Hotel, was filed yesterday. She left her jewelry to her son, Herbert B. Masters, and the remainder of her estate is divided equally between the son and her husband, Bert Masters, a restaurant proprietor. Frank H. Haskins, an attorney, is made trustee of the insurance and executor of the estate. The will was made Sept. 26, 1921. A Coroner's Jury yesterday returned an open verdict after an investigation of the death of Mrs. Masters.

The Family-in-Law

Why They Break Up So Many Homes

The Most Successful "In-Laws" Are Those Who Give Up Running Things When the Couple Leaves the Altar, Becoming Merely Friends.

By SOPHIE IRENE LOEB

THE mother-in-law and the other in-laws—those always warm the cockles of the heart of the human and arouse the ire of the thousands who have suffered at their hands.

Yet this is one of the causes that break up homes. And it is perhaps one of the most serious of the elements that create unhappiness that have set forth in the preceding article.

All of these writings were based on hundreds of letters that had been received—communications that speak louder than words—as to the few direct causes that bring dissension and break up homes.

Strange to say, suffering at the hands of relatives-in-law are borne by men and women alike. That is the trouble is perhaps equal in the case of the husband or wife.

Most of the blame is generally hurled at the mother-in-law. The trouble with her is that she can't let go of her child and hates to think that she has lost some of her influence over that child by virtue of the marriage.

Almost unconsciously she harbors a grudge against the person who has superseded her. It is mostly jealousy. She hugs the green-eyed monster close, and then seeks revenge in many ways.

If you were to tell this to the average mother-in-law, she would not believe it. What! She wants to keep her own child? Nothing is further from her mind, she would tell you. She wants her child to be happy, of course. What! She stops to revenge because she can't have her way? Such an idea is preposterous she would assert.

But when all is said and done, that is the truth. She insists that she must have an interest in the daughter or son after they have left the paternal roof.

To such a woman I would say something like this:

Doubtless you have been a very good mother. You have sacrificed and worked yourself to death in order that your boy or girl might be what they are today. You naturally want to feel that you are not forgotten, and that your love is respected, accordingly.

And the only way to keep the love of your married child and the highest respect of the daughter-in-law, or the son-in-law, is, in plain parlance, "to mind your own business."

You must realize that your boy or girl is as entitled to his or her own life with another who has agreed to live it with him or her. That partnership does not include any other members of the family. The sooner a woman or any in-law recognizes this fact, the sooner the trouble with in-laws will be overcome.

In-laws are usually meddlesome people and gossips. They want to run the affairs of this nation of two people and they must always find themselves in hot water when they do.

The most successful in-laws are those who give up running things when the couple leaves the altar. The thing for them to do is to assume the attitude of friends to the married couple, and nothing more. If they can keep that friendly spirit going they will save themselves and the couple as well.

The reason they fall out is because they want to be more than friends.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE
The Best Advertising.

YOU make your own "ad." If it is the right kind it helps.

Advertising is necessary to a man as it is to a business.

It must be intelligent advertising. It must be intelligently placed.

If you are a furniture salesman, you do not place your "ad" where it can be seen by retail druggists. You put it where it comes to the notice of employers of furniture salesmen.

The way to do is to sell furniture and a lot of it. Presently employers in your line will observe that your firm is selling a large amount of furniture, and will begin to make inquiries as to who is doing it.

That is when you see your "ad," which is merely your salesmanship.

Every intelligent employer makes it his business to watch his competitors, and to discover if possible why they are succeeding.

If you are one of the reasons why they are succeeding, most of the men in your trade will soon know about it.

A good man in any line never goes without a job. What he has been doing is known, not only to his employers, but to other employers. There is a demand for him which he himself has made. He has made it with his "ad."

If Charles M. Schwab happened to be out of employment at this minute, his mail would be besieged by offers of a million dollars a year and upward from steel concerns in various parts of the world.

Mr. Schwab has advertised himself. Not by telling people how good he was, but by making and selling steel. He employed the best sort of advertising.

Remember, if you are one of the unfortunate who are working for an unappreciative employer, that your "ad" need not be confined to your own shop.

If you are doing the best work in the place somebody is going to tell somebody else about it, and sooner or later it will leak to outside concerns.

Don't be afraid to tell anybody—everybody—that you can do good work—if you really can.

But remember that your "ad," like every "ad," must be on the level. To make it valuable you have got to have the goods. Otherwise it may help you once, but never again. After that you will be known as a fake advertiser. And no matter how widely you disseminate your claims, they will receive no attention.

Personal or business advertising is good if it is straight and truthful. Otherwise it is worse than useless.

How the Girl With Abundant Hair Should Dress

Be Sure Hat Is Adequate for Hair
—Large Head Size, Large Crown, Sufficient Breadth of Outline or Sufficient Trimming to Be a Natural Accompaniment.

By MARGERY WELLS.

UNLESS she is very clever, the girl with too much hair is just as badly off as the one whose hair is too thin and sparse. Quantities of hair are a distinct blessing. Girls are never more lovely when their hair is abundant and beautiful. But the fixing of a great deal of hair is a problem in itself. And there is no hope of ever being smart looking for the girl with lots of hair who just twists its thoughtslessly about her head and lets it go.

Interfering means making it your business to settle small problems without being asked to do so.

Interfering means too much interest in a thing because of being a relation.

Interfering means visiting the couple too often.

Interfering means constantly siding with one against the other. The peacock always gets the worst of it in such a situation.

To avoid all such controversies, and even tragedies, the wise family-in-law will realize that when a couple is married they have formed a family of their own, and no matter how strong the ties were before there is a changed condition in which blood ties have the right of being the most important.

But the fixing of her hair is an important consideration in her life. I have heard a girl of this type say and with tears in her voice, "But I can't do a thing with my hair. I have too much. You criticize and you don't tell me how to remedy this evil." I took one of these sufferers at her word one day and sent her to an expensive hair dresser with instructions to have her hair dressed as that gentleman would advise and for her to watch his every movement like a hawk so that she could come home and do likewise. Well, she did come home and perform a number of miracles which had always been her burden. And from something that looked as though it had been blown in from the street, she blossomed into a rarely beautiful specimen of humanity, with that most lovely of all female attractions her.

I would like to say to such couples something like this:

If you are going to be happy, you must not let one come in and cause you to change your respect and admiration for the one person in the world to whom you owe the highest allegiance which your marriage oath implies.

The minute you permit such violation of your life partner's rights, you are laying yourself and your home open to endless misery—misery that at first seems insignificant but becomes a mountain as time goes by.

If you permit any one, no matter how close a relative he or she is, to influence your actions against the woman you have married, or the man, as the case may be, that minute you are admitting into your home a demon of discontent that consumes happiness and often makes life insufferable.

It is untrue to say the least, for some one to supersede your wife, husband in the course of your actions, and never fails to spread seeds of distrust.

The big thing for relatives is to keep a safe distance from married couples, and for married couples to insist that that safe distance be kept. And the safe distance means only sincere friendship and nothing more for the good of all concerned.

The reason they fall out is because they want to be more than friends.

something that makes you topheavy in appearance. I have seen many a girl with gorgeous hair who, beyond all question, had just too much of it. This is the case. The woman have been so much more beautiful if she had done just a trifling of weeding.

Hats have more importance in the dressing of all girls than many of them realize. But especially must the girl with much hair be careful of the sort of hat she decides to make her own.

You know I needn't tell you about the girl with very little amount of hair who goes about with a hat and walks out of the store confidently wearing one that sits upon the top of her head and tips gently here and there for lack of a proper anchor. It is an awful sight to see when you think seriously about these things and take hats as essential parts of life. You remonstrate with her a little. And then, when her complaining starts at full speed, she says that no hat is safe, that the head sizes are too small, etc. And you know that there are still other deficiencies about those hats that she has not even glimpsed.

The girl with much hair must have a hat that is adequate for that hair. And if she should offer her no successful solution, then she must have been made—that is all there is to that little matter.

Colby and Harvey Add Spice to a London Feast

They Twit Each Other Sharply, but Good

Function.

We had just come from the police court and I sat them down in my private office; pretty up. They had gone through awful experiences—horrible. We may never be able to live it down. There they sat, hands clasped, every carnival of misery.

"By 'they' I mean Mr. and Mrs. Ringsnap."

Now for the harrowing story led up to the solemn occasion which shall be known to three generations as "Mrs. Ringsnap Bobbed Hair."

The Ringsnaps had been married for five years and hit off pretty comfortably and harmoniously. Ringsnap was a good listener and with wife and wondering eyes as a wonderful husband told her all the big things that he was going to do and how much the president of the company thought of him, and the office boy kowtowed to him, all that. Don't ask me all that. Ringsnap secretly thought: "As listened by the hour to her husband's big talk. She went so far as to practice his words to him that she might have thought along the same lines as did one snap-in-stenographer in the office who served that 'Ringsnap's brains are gone to his beezers.'

One night Mrs. Ringsnap walked over to her husband as they lay alone by the holy heart of home.

"I believe I'll get my hair bobbed."

This was a mild enough announcement, but Ringsnap looked up from her paper and studied her face for moment to see whether she was earnest.

She looked extremely earnest, in fact, yawned. When her pretty mouth closed, she went on:

"I am quite in earnest, dear. I am going to get my hair bobbed."

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Dec. 22.—Ambassador George Harvey and Bainbridge Collier, Secretary of State under President Wilson, put aside their political differences and faced each other over the loving cup and twitted each other good-humoredly at the dinner last night of the Knights of the Order Club. Former United States Senator J. Hamilton Lewis also participated in the exchange of witty shafts with the Ambassador.

With some show of feeling, Colby replied to the Ambassador's Pilgrim dinner allusion to "the two great powers" fighting that the army went to France constituted the best illustration of the inaccuracy of that statement upon which Colby had based his speech.

He said he belonged to that section of opinion in America which would have approached the problem before the Washington conference with a little more dash and spirit and less hesitancy," and he added, "I believe that the League of Nations will be a success." However, Mr. Washington accomplished his purpose in the right direction.

Colby concluded with a compliment to the Ambassador, declaring: "There is no better American than Harvey. His progress has been sure and sustained. His steps need no assistance."

Mr. Ernest Wild said: "If America would only be content not to be

Hughes and Balfour Leaving Conference Alone Pending
Word From Tokio.

By CHARLES MERZ,
Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Secretaries Hughes and Arthur Balfour will meet their good offices to get the Shantung negotiations under way until the Japanese have had a reply to the cable they dispatched yesterday to Tokio. Meantime, the deadlock continues. No session was held yesterday.

A Japanese journalist, cross-questioning Hanbara when the latter received all of a sudden his wife, seemed all of a sudden to have acquired an uncountable lot of dependence. "It might be wise for you to stop and think whose hair is bobbed, mostly."

"Cut it out. I certainly put foot down on that proposition."

"We're certainly not going to your hair bobbed. Are you crazy? You know well enough how I have always admired your hair."

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles that it will always fight for justice and freedom, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public blunders, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with money printing never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Hand Signals.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NOTICE in your columns a letter from "An Auto Owner," in which he shows some regard for the walking public.

I believe it is about time that old ladies and children, especially our little ones, should be protected by our traffic laws.

I am sure your paper stands for the rights of all the people, and such signals that furnish information to "joy riders" only, with no consideration for the pedestrains, should never be approved.

The question of my grandpa, who says, "Grandma, why don't they make them (walking auto drivers) put on some signals which will tell which way they are going?" is, I believe, a question that should be answered.

Our Safety Council and police officials ought to go back to the hand signal, which, if obeyed, could be understood by all. If I understand, most of the states East and West have passed laws regarding the hand signal. Hand up or down from horizontal meaning to turn to the right or left. Why not enforce these signals for the benefit of the walking public, even if they do or do not have to have any of the various "hind lights"?

Please lend a voice for our benefit and especially for little children, who are obliged to cross the streets and cannot tell when to do so.

"A GRANDMOTHER."

Morally Binding.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE Pacific treaty ought to be approved, though it morally, if not technically, binds us to fight, if our three associates should so decide. The treaty does not require "unanimous consent" to sign, so a majority decision of the three countries is morally implied.

The guarded diplomatic language of the treaty is: "An understanding as to the most efficient measures to be taken, jointly or separately, to meet the exigencies of the Pacific situation." In plain language, the treaty says that if any nation does anything wrong on the Pacific, four Powers will come to the rescue and may to stop it. We agree to stop it. The consultation is only to decide on "the most efficient measures."

JEFF MACKAY.

A Real Charity.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

HERE is hardly a day that our mails are not crowded with appeals for charity from some source.

How this money is spent the public does not know, but it is clear that when opportunity for real charity is presented to the organizations and charity lives retreat into seclusion.

I have in mind the real charitable work that has been undertaken by Mr. F. Blanke, in providing meals for thousands that are on the streets of the city without means.

I know of no work that will do as much for morality and the prevention of sin as the work that Mr. Blanke has undertaken.

Naturally, it is a large job to care for thousand, and possibly two thousand, hungry men for several months. Mr. Blanke has stated that he would be glad to have the public aid him in this undertaking, so that he could realize the very earnest desire for the people that need him to do so.

Is it possible that there are not 100 people in the city of St. Louis that are willing to contribute from $5 to $10 per month to carry on the splendid work started by Mr. Blanke, and in which he has the aid of the Salvation Army women men?

J. C. FISCHER.

The Dawn of the Millennium.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

MOST of the inhabitants of the earth

for which we are now living, nor do they perceive the great privilege of being here at this particular time, when the light of peace is feebly glimmering in the distance and the hope of 2000 years is about to be achieved. How blind is man if he would drop the scales from his eyes and lift the veil of superstition and ignorance, and see truth and affection slowly rising as a mist over the entire earth and the gradual blending and drawing together of their attributes—to produce the brotherhood of man and the happiness of which all the nations will partake.

God's great promises to Abraham is about to be fulfilled: "In thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

What does all this mean? That representatives of great nations and opposite sides should be upon American soil at the same time—leaders of the constructive and destructive are within our gates, both receiving the homage and applause of man—the battle of suppression and non-violence. It is indeed significant. The die is set—the scale awaits in its balance. The foremost men of the Orient and the Occident are in their respective places—not by the knowledge of man, but by the wisdom of God. They are put in his hands.

As the ages struggles through the black soil and finally unfolds its petals one by one until it attains its supreme beauty, so will the stories for man be made manifest and come forth from the long dark night in the dawn of the millennium, which we have already entered.

MRS. E. H. MORREY.

CHOOSE THE BEST.

The selection of candidates as district delegates to the Constitution convention, as it is now progressing, is not altogether reassuring. As reported by the Jefferson City correspondent of the Post-Dispatch, friends of the new Constitution are somewhat perturbed at the nominating methods employed in some of the country districts. The fact that the party committees in several of the districts have named the candidates, apparently without consulting the public's wishes, has aroused the suspicion that the politicians are scheming to pack the convention.

The point is made that the delegates, if chosen by party committees, will represent the party committees, not the people. It goes without saying that the politicians will run the Constitution convention if they can. Yet no objection can be made to some of the candidates named by the party committees. Men of the caliber of John C. McKinley of Unionville and John H. Bothwell of Sedalia, for example, ought to do excellent work in the convention. Mr. Higbee of Lancaster and Mr. Ford of Maryville are not so well known throughout the State. The fact that they are not so well known may raise a question as to the wisdom of their nominations.

The same objection lies against the Republican candidates selected in four St. Louis districts last night. Those gentlemen may be qualified to participate in the important work of drafting a State Constitution, but the fact that they have made no special impression on the public mind of the city argues against them.

The importance of the task which the Constitution convention will undertake cannot be overestimated. It is a task which calls for the finest ability in the State. It would be a fortunate thing for Missouri if a keen rivalry existed among all the districts for the honor of sending the ablest delegation to that convention. In any event it behoves St. Louis to choose delegates men who can represent the city adequately, whose ability and aptitude for the work will command the convention's respect and whose services will confer distinction on St. Louis and Missouri.

Men of outstanding fitness should be commissioned to write our new Constitution. There are men of that quality in every district in the city and State. They should be chosen.

Leave it to Senator Reed to write the formula of "How to torture your President."

THE CRIME OF YOUTH.

"So much has been said about women's dress," remarked the Rev. J. J. McGlynn at a meeting of the Society of Catholic Women, "and so much advice has been given to us as to how they ought to dress that I am surprised that they know how to dress themselves at all."

They don't. What's more, they never did. Women's dress is an immemorial source of anguish, despair, wrath and indignation. Yet the pilloried flapper of the moment may find some comfort in reflecting that along about 1860 she will occupy a pedestal; she will be revered as the embodiment of all the virtues the disconsolate censors who will be heckling her granddaughters as their progenitors are upbraiding her.

Pleasing the gloomsters is a task to which the bewitching, adorable female of the species has never been so personally competent:

Said the Reverend James McCaffery: "Women's dress is a woman's prerogative."

Said Jones to Miss Ebel: "Don't you mind that old guy, Dr. Crafts?"

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Condemning the rising generation to whatever perdition they happen personally to approve has always been the favorite pastime of the moral despotics to whom youth is a crime and "beauty the tar-off echo of ancestral lusts." It doesn't hurt youth, and, praise be, it doesn't help the croakers.

BUSINESS WITH UNCLE SAM.

If the price of sugar had gone up to 30 cents a pound and the Attorney-General of the United States sent for you and asked you to purchase in Argentine 70,000 available tons of sugar, with the assistance of the Argentine Government, at 20 cents a pound, to be resold as directed by him in the United States at 21 cents a pound, you to be reimbursed from the sales and to receive the 1 cent difference as compensation, would you undertake the job? There is $1,400,000 in it, gross.

A joint Senate resolution reveals that this proposition was put to two American corporations jointly by Attorney-General Palmer, when he embarked in his campaign to reduce the high cost of living, in May, 1920; that they accepted and that before the sugar could be brought to the United States the bottom dropped out of our domestic market, leaving the corporations with 13,902 tons on their hands, with a visible loss of $2,700,000.

Senator Wadsworth, who is sponsoring the resolution, says the corporations are morally entitled to have their losses made good and the resolution contemplates an appropriation to this end. Senators Reed and Walsh declare that the corporations failed to exercise ordinary business prudence; that any lawyer could have told them that the Attorney-General was wholly without legal authority to bind the Government; that to admit a moral obligation would be to give carte blanche to heads of all Govovernment departments to make any contracts that struck their fancy and compel the Government to fulfill them.

So, what looked like a gross profit of $1,400,000 is, at the present writing, an actual and potential loss of $4,100,000.

THE KENTON BROADSIDE.

It ought not to require a special brand of courage for a member of the United States Senate to stand up in the chamber and represent the unanimous opinion of the people of the nation as against the foregone verdict of a majority of his colleagues. Yet no member of the Senate majority but Kenyon of Iowa has displayed either the courage or the intellectual honesty to do so.

We assume that intelligent and informed public opinion is unanimous in the conviction not only of the purchase of the Newberry seat, but of Newberry's full knowledge of the transaction, because, as Senator Kenyon declares, "It is nonsense to say that Mr. Newberry knew nothing about the campaign, financial or otherwise."

To deny that the evidence was sufficient to be convincing to anybody who considers it is the cheapest of legalistic casuistry. Regardless of any statutes, Federal or State, as the Iowa Senator says, "the entire election of Newberry was tainted and his seat ought to be vacated."

Senator Kenyon set forth the obvious denial of justice and the subversion of principle in the cause of partisanship. What he might have said in analysis of the situation in the Senate that permits the sanction of so transparent a corruption he, as a member, could hardly have said with propriety. He might have pointed the finger of accusation at that hard-shelled political cynicism of the upper house of Congress which has not hesitated brazenly to play politics with world peace and to deny the fundamental demands of honesty in the defense of the seat of a fellow partisan.

The Senators already knew what the member from Iowa told them. They are as yet lacking in a sufficient exposition of the own hardened insensitivity to an honest moral appeal.

THE LAW'S THE THING.

Dr. Wilbur S. Crafts, the reforming reformer of the International Reform Bureau, has numerous projects for saving the souls of men by making it illegal for them to do wrong. His program includes an effort to induce the nations represented at the armament conference to adopt international prohibition after they have finished a discussion of war problems, "a fight against nude pictures 'that put beauty above duty'" and against the publication of racing odds that might encourage betting, and regulation of the motion picture industry.

The most imposing of Dr. Crafts' proposals to hurry the establishment of the kingdom of heaven here below, however, is conceived in behalf of a hitherto much neglected class, legislatively speaking. By a Federal law prohibiting marriages for 30 days following announcement of the engagement the worthy divine would make it "impossible for an actress to get the son of a rich man drunk and marry him before he gets sober."

Something, it seems, must be done to save the sons of our rich men. The people have permitted their attention to be too much absorbed in the problems of war and peace, of unemployment, high prices and rates of exchange while one rich man's son after another, to the number of at least two or three, has succumbed to the actress evil, has been intoxicated notwithstanding Dr. Crafts' prohibition of liquor, wedded and fleeced.

There is one other possible effect of the proposed law, however, which Dr. Crafts seems not to have taken into consideration, on the desirability of which we hesitate to pass judgment. This is that the enforced postponement of nuptials might permit many another man to sober up before being married. But such little matters of advisability should not be permitted, of course, to hamper the passage of legislation on the subject. For, after all, at reform bureau headquarters, the law's the thing.

THE RIDDLE OF RIDDELL.

Lord Riddell, a member of the British delegation to the arms conference, has looked upon Americans and found us good—you might say, perfect. A hotel maxim, "The guest is always right," has been expanded by our visitor into a national trade-mark. Also, in the jostle of the street he has encountered such considerate that he awards us eminence, if not leadership, in courtesy.

Then, too, the American passion for "getting ahead," which has evoked jeers from the cynics and tears from the philosophers is construed by this amiable commentator as something finer than sordid ambition. He detects in it a large purpose, a desire to glorify the country. Wherefore, what was once derided as "dollar chasing" is, in Lord Riddell's estimation, Moreover, he is impressed with the determination of American newspaper reporters to get the facts. Accuracy, he avers, is the passion, aye, the obsession, of our journalism.

Enough. More compliments could hardly be digestible.

Riddell may have solved America, but Americans may doubt whether they have solved Riddell.

Edward J. O'Brien's annual survey of the best short stories of 1921 includes in its roll of honor three stories by Sherwood Anderson: "South of the River," "England," and "Unlighted Skies." In his estimate of magazines printing distinctive stories Mr. O'Brien gives the Dial first place, with the Midland second, Asia third and the rest of the first 19 in following order: Harper's Magazine, Pictorial Review, Century, Atlantic Monthly, Scribner's, All's Well and Harper's Bazaar. Mr. O'Brien awards honorable mention to "The Last Veteran," by Vincent Starrett; "One in Northern Twilight" and "Common Ground," by Mary S. Lovell and "Woman From Over the Skyline," by Marion Alcott Seiffert. In his review of the year's short stories published first in the Boston Transcript, Mr. O'Brien comments interestingly on the new development in American letters which has impressed Englishmen. He quotes Alfred Coppel as saying: "I have been reading books by Sherwood Anderson, Ben Hecht and Karel Capek and Joseph Conrad and George Bernard Shaw, and I can see that they are important books, but I feel that the essential point to which all this newly awakened literary consciousness is tending has somehow subtly eluded me." Mr. O'Brien deduces that this chaos in American letters is due to a multiplicity of causes and energies that have been released. According to him, "the main point of view of the great artist these books will more or less magnificently fail which were creating out of the shock of the conflict an ultimate harmony, out of which the great book for which we are all waiting in America might come ten years from now or five years, or even tomorrow."

The French agree to the Hughes program with reservations. Let's see: Who started the reservations business?

JUST A MINUTE . . .

Written for the POST-DISPATCH
By Clark McAdams

Conan Doyle has become the greatest of our modern mystics. At a time when mysticism and a man who made himself famous have been quite clear as a place where he shall have his books, his home and all those dear to him.

We have a letter from a minister who protests against our disbelief in prohibition, but it seems to us that ministers have discredited themselves in this matter. Their part as we understand it is to persuade their people to make men who we think should be by merely having a law of compulsion, then the minister is going the long way about something in which he and we are all immensely interested. Just a Minute disbelieves in prohibition precisely because he believes in preaching. He is a preacher himself. He hopes to persuade ministers to accept his view of prohibition. Prohibition has traded an occasional drunkard for 20 outlaws. That, however, is not the point, any more than it is the point for someone to be interested in a woman who would add $500,000 to the public revenue and increase taxes. The point is that whereas we were making great gains against drunkenness and the evils of liquor to the steady increase of our self-control and the rapid growth of our self-respect, we have fallen into demoralization. There is nothing new about prohibition as a theory. It has been tried for thousands of years. Compulsion held the human race in its clutch for whole eras before liberty appeared. Liberty is the flower of civilization. Prohibition belongs to the inquisition. What do we propose doing to someone who will not drink? What will we seek to persuade him? No. We will arrest him. It will not be the fault of some of the drunks if we do not keep on until we employ the rack. What has a minister done to do with that sort of thing?

A group of Osage Indians who are settling in a wild part of Mexico to get away from the evil influence of our civilization are rather effectively expressing what they think of us. The Osages are very rich—the richest people in the world, indeed. They have tried both the primitive and the civilized life, and they prefer the primitive. They are much faster than might be thought to be the case when they have all the money they want. It is not conceivable to us that anyone having all the money he wants could want anything else, nor could he be so badly off in our civilization. It is from the Indian viewpoint that money fails to take the place of other things. The Osages want to be Indians. They want to be Indians. They do not want to be thrown into a hedgehog world, which would have to look after annuities and royalties. They want to ride ponies, and they do not want to drive Pierce-Arrows, Packards, Cadillacs, Automobiles and Stutz. Good-by, boys. We envy you. It was our wives got us into this mess.

EDWARD J. O'BRIEN.

Ballet to Music by Wireless.
PARIS, Dec. 22.—Twenty ballet girls danced to music played 25 miles away at a theatrical matinee here recently. It was a practical wireless expert, and ex-President Poincare witnessed the dancing.

There's still time before Christmas to get a

Chilton Player-Piano

For only $495

Bench and Player-Rolls included
Terms as low as $14 monthly

FOR only $495—two hundred dollars less than last Christmas—you can get the Chilton—the Player-Piano made, sold and guaranteed by the Aeolian Company, the world's foremost producer of musical instruments.

With the price so low, and terms so convenient—only $14 a month—you can surely bring to your home this Christmas the gift you have always wanted to give—a genuinely good Player-Piano that will last through the years and will always be the same wonderful instrument as on the day you bought it.

Just a small down payment, and the Chilton—together with a beautiful bench and player rolls of your own selection—will be delivered to your home on Christmas morning, or sooner.

And you won't have to begin your monthly payments until February first. Choice of mahogany, fumed oak or golden oak.

TONE—so beautiful as to hold you spellbound. So clear, so true, with such naturalness, does the SAROLA reproduce the renditions of master artists that it is quite a task to distinguish the original from the reproduction. The sound is clear, full and rich, and this is due to its oval tone chamber, or amplifier, whose shape resembles that of the human throat. The SAROLA is indeed the ideal gift for every member of the family—it is the Phonograph that will bring Christmas joy and happiness the year round—it is a gift that will live long after the holidays have passed.

So overwhelming is the demand for Sarolas right now that our stocks are fast becoming depleted! INHERITS MILLIONS, WILL
WED CHAMBERMAID

French Sailor, Who Falls Heir to Uncle's Vast Estate, True to Old Love.

PARIS, Dec. 22.—The legendary
"Uncle in America," the dream of so many in France not born with silver spoons in their mouths, has materialized for Bernard Pouech Lancle in the form of a complete fortune left him by his uncle, who emigrated to Argentina years ago and made $30,000,- 00 francs by breeding cattle and afterward running a meat packing factory. Lancle also had the luck to find a gold mine on his property at Calabancio-Pichicou, and to inherit another fortune left him by a cousin in Valparaiso.

All these millions have suddenly come tumbling into the lap of a country-bred sailor, aged 55 winters.
At least they ought to have done so,
according to the wishes of Uncle Sicard, and after months of weary searching notaries have appraised him of his good fortune.

But at the moment Lancle is living in a sordid inn at Dunkirk, dependent on old companions of adventure for frugal meals and tobacco.
For the next few months Lancle before he can enjoy his windfalls are cousins and the difficulties are not lessened by the fact that he is ill-literate. To add to his troubles an important packet of papers concerning the inheritance has disappeared.
As a result, Lancle alleges, of the negligence of a lawyer whom he refused to employ.

The old sailor's malf is bigger than that of a Cabinet Minister. Naturally most of his correspondents are business men, but Lancle is not anxious to marry him and help spend his money. But Bernard says that in the Villa of Arcachon which he means to buy he will have a gun at every window to keep away undesirables.
And as for marriage—well, Lancle has confided to inquisitive reporters that he is in love head over heels.

"Tea," the old salt confessed, blushing like a boy. "I'm going to marry Marthe Jauga, the best cham-bermaid that ever made a bed. And next to look up to. Oh, she's not quite like the others. Of course she's worth her weight in gold. When I get my money we shall start housekeeping and buy a house at Arcachon, a limousine, and then I'll settle down and enjoy life. I shall not forget the pals either. I shall have a bureau of philanthropy where old sailors will always be welcome."

Lancle was a cabin boy at the age of 12, had sailed around the world several times, had countless adventures, and during the war was torpedoed twice.

BROCCO, TWICE WINNER OF BIKE RACE IS FRENCHMAN

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 22.—Maurice ("Jimmy") Brocco, who with his partners has won the Madison Square Garden six-day bike race for two consecutive years, is a Frenchman, and wants any credit for his victories to go to France, he said today.

"It is strange," he declared, "that although a Frenchman born and bred, I have won the Madison Square six-day race twice to the greatest satisfaction of the American public."

Young Brocco simply will not believe that I am a Frenchman. Please tell them that if I ever win the race again, I should like the credit to be given to France."

He was born in Flumes, on the River Seine in Paris, 32 years ago. Flumes was captured by the American forces in their offensive of July, 1918.

The selection was made by Coach Andy Smith of the Cornell team.

Eckersall has officiated in many important games for several years and this season was an official in 21 contests.

CENTRE MUST PLAY IN DALLAS.

In case they do violate their contracts a penalty of several thousand dollars will be inflicted on the offending management, Sullivan added.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—Charles C. Peterson, St. Louis baseball expert, who saw the final block, turned the tide of the recent world's three-cushion championship match at Chicago in Johnny Layton's favor. The time of the shot, pictured above, was the "break" in favor of Kieckhefer with the south-paw leading for the entire three blocks by a margin of 2 points.

While the above shot did not actually regain the world's title for Layton, Peterson is of the opinion that it was the "break" that had a great deal to do with the championship changing hands.

CARDINAL DU BOIS GIVES HIS VIEWS ON WOMEN'S DRESS

Prelate of Paris Says It Is Spirit in Which Things Are Worn That Is Important Point.

FAVORS REFORMS IN DANCES AND MOVIES

Suggests Having Innocent Steps Devised and Says Exotic Productions Should Be Fought.

By MAZIE E. CLEMONS, Special Correspondent of the New York World and Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Dec. 22.—"It is the spirit in which things are worn rather than the style of them that after all is the important thing," declared Cardinal Du Bois, Archbishop of Paris.

"I am afraid we are a little inclined to exaggerate these things and that the styles are not extreme enough. Some people would try to have us believe. My predecessor, the lamented Cardinal Amette, issued a pastoral letter protesting against the tendency of fashions and the shortening of skirts, and I feel confident the present move toward longer skirts has been greatly accelerated by that letter."

Born in Saint-Calais in 1856, Cardinal Du Bois had his first parish that of Calais, Benoit, at Mains, in 1885. Since then his progress has been rapid. He was made Vicar General of Verdun in 1898, Bishop of Verdun in 1901, Archbishop of Bourges in 1909, Archbishop of Rouen in 1916, in which year he was raised to the Cardinals; and became Archbishop of Paris in 1920, in succession to Cardinal Amette, who succumbed to the terrific demands made upon his strength during the war.

I had the honor of interviewing both of the Cardinals—Cardinal Amette in 1919, which interview is in the conditions of the old world, evinced a dislike for such publicity as comes from interviews of the sort, and when such an interview is accorded it is a rare concession.

I wanted to get the views of the Cardinal-Archbishop on the subject of women's dress, and asked him an indication of the morality behind them, and the crux of the view of Cardinal Du Bois is contained in the opening paragraph. He is a man of broad and comprehensive mind, of a calm and impressive dignity and of a personality that compels an affectionate respect.

He had anticipated a rather scathing denunciation of feminine fashions, and was surprised to find the tempestuous view held by the head of the great Archdiocese of Paris. Not that he finds anything to admire in the conditions of the old world, but that they are dangerous to themselves, alleging that they can only be in those dances without committing themselves, but nevertheless there remains in those dances a danger aggravated by the immodesty of the dresses, and they are an occasion of scandal. It is said again that one cannot "abstain from the dance" in the old world, but that it remains for Christian women to banish that idea from good society. Young Christian gentlemen will aid them by adjusting that sort of dances for themselves, because they are the first to recognize their evil character.

League Forming in Paris. In the discourse we have cited above, the Soviety of French Catholics in Paris has formed to combat these styles among all persons and families on whom their influence may be efficaciously exercised. A league of this kind has been formed in Paris. We bled it and we desire exceedingly that it may propagate itself and include in its action a fight against prohibited dances. It would be well to attend to this, and to禁止 these diversions and enjoyments, which modern condones with religious practices, and even with frequent communion. When we make a profession of Christianity one should be a Christian, not only in his character but in his dress and conduct. It is what they will rush to do. We have confidence in the mother and young daughter of our diocese whose spirit of faith and piety we know."

"There must be many graceful dances without objectionable features which people can dance without losing countenance and twists they tell me about. And if there are not enough pretty, innocent dances, why cannot people have some artist devise some, rather than seek to indulge in these exotic dances which come from all sorts of places?"

"In this the leading classes of society have a duty and a responsibility. They should show by example what is proper for the guidance of those less fortunate in education and culture."

His Eminence fully realizes the importance of the cinema in the formation of the character of the people.

Has Criticism for Movies.

"It should and could be one of the best features of our civilization but it is one of the worst, both on account of the character of pictures shown and the fact that these pictures are viewed in the main by the simpler minded of our population, rather than our better educated class." But the important thing is that the people should cultivate the true Christian spirit, and it was never more essential than it is now. The tendency toward evil seems to be everywhere, so much so that the Holy Father himself felt it incumbent to issue a warning against extravagance both in dress and in dances."

I asked His Eminence what were his views on the use of rouge and other cosmetics. His only answer was a smile. His Eminence then gave me a copy of his pastoral against exotic styles and unbecoming dances. Translated, it reads:

"At many times we have recalled to women and young girls the duty imposed upon them to abstain from unseemly styles and unbecoming dances. Translated, it reads:

NEW MARKET FOR BARLEY FOUND SINCE PROHIBITION

Little Reduction in Acreage Noted—Grain Prices to Be Highly Stable as Feed.

By the Associated Press.

RACINE, Wis., Dec. 22.—What happens to the barley the brewers used to buy?

What was the fate of one of the United States, formerly used as a foundation in the manufacture of malt liquors, the special market for which was, theoretically at least, destroyed by the late passage of the Volstead act describing beer as an intoxicating liquor prescribed under the eighteenth amendment?

The Wisconsin Agriculturist shows that there has been practically no reduction in the acreage of barley planted since prohibition was adopted. The crop in the United States this year was shown to be 167,000,000 bushels, compared with 171,000,000 bushels the year before. The acreage of barley in 1920 was 2,000,000, the reduction not being due to any cutting down of acreage, but to an unanticipated crop failure. The agriculturist reports that the new market for this grain is a contribution to the farmer by the agricultural schools of the midwest.

Anticipating that the stoppage of the manufacture of malt liquors would bring about a market for barley, the agricultural colleges of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Wisconsin began a series of tests to determine the feed value of the grain. These tests which have been continued in combination for three years have demonstrated that barley is ultra valuable as a stock feed; that it contains more protein and more carbohydrates than oats, lacking only slightly in fat content.

In feed value, the experiments have shown that an acre in Illinois will produce 335 pounds more actual digestible feed if planted to barley than if planted to oats. In Indiana the barley produces 299 pounds more feed than oats; in Iowa, 246, and in Wisconsin, 286, according to the report.

dances. We regret we have to reprove our warning and our prohibitions on this subject. The Holy Father has given us the example and has himself issued to the Catholic women of Italy a warning as to the dangers of the new fashions and the energy on the obligations of the Christian woman to prove her purity by the fashion of her dress. Born of the corruption of those who look at them, says he, the extreme tolerance is dangerous provocation to evil; and he added, "this excess has gone so far as to lead to bringing indecent dress even into the holy places."

"We make those words of the Holy Father ours, and we adjure the young ladies of our diocese to react against all styles opposed to Christian decency. Those are to see that their young daughters are dressed in a manner to uphold all the delicacies of conduct and character as opposed to shame."

"There is another abuse which the Christian women have a duty to fight, the unbecoming dances of exotic character and origin. The women and their young daughters are in constant contact with them in the piazza. Many persons accuse themselves, alleging that they can only be in those dances without committing themselves, but nevertheless there remains in those dances a danger aggravated by the immodesty of the dresses, and they are an occasion of scandal. It is said again that one cannot "abstain from the dance" in the old world, but that it remains for Christian women to banish that idea from good society. MY FAVORITE STORIES

By IRVIN S. COBB

(One of a series of short funny stories by the celebrated American humorist which appear daily in the Post-Dispatch on this page.)

THE PICK OF THE CROWD.

A PLANTER living a few miles from a small city in one of the lower cotton states called up the Police Judge on the long-distance telephone.

"Say, Judge," he said, "I just got word that my house boy, Jim, went to town last night and got in a row and hit another darky with a brick, and was locked up. I need that boy, and I wish, as a favor to me, you'd let him go when he comes up today before you. If you think he ought to pay a fine, let me know what it is tonight at lodge meeting and I'll hand the amount to you."

"All right," answered the Judge. "I'm willing to do anything in reason, but you'll have to come in here and pick out your own nigger."

"Lord, man," remonstrated the planter, "I can't take the time off to go into the police station today! I'm as busy as a bird dog right this minute."

"Can't help it," answered his honor. "I can't afford to take any more chances. Here, just the other day, Col. Talbert, down at Palmetto, called me up the same as you've done today and asked me to turn loose one of his hands that was in the calaboose for shooting craps. I agreed to do it, but I plumb forgot the nigger's name, and to make sure of getting the right one and not disappointing Talbert, I had to turn loose every nigger on the docket."

"There were 14 of 'em in all—and one of 'em was charged with murder, too. It made a lot of talk, and the Chief of Police kicked about it. If you want your nigger you come get him!"

METROPOLITAN MOVIES :: By GENE CARR

"Is Mrs. G. a grouch? I've never seen her smile." "No; she's afraid to since she had all her wrinkles ironed out, for fear they'll come back."

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

LITTLE HOPEFUL

My appetite began to flag,
My thoughts were steeped in gloom;
I found it difficult to drag Myself from room to room.
"You are not sick," the doctor said;

"You don't know what to eat;
If I were you I'd eat more bread
And cut out meat."

I cut out meat, as he advised,
But still I weaker grew,
And presently I realized
That this would never do.

Again the doctor I besought

To come. He came, and said,

"You are not sick, you merely ought

To cut out bread."

I cut out bread, but that did not Relieve me very much,
Although I daily ate a lot
Of apples, pears and such.

The doctor whom I called, observed,

"Your case is not acute.

You merely are a bit unnerfed.

Just cut out fruit."

I've cut out fruit, and now I feed

On nothing much at all,

But I reluctantly am indeed.

To have the doctor call.

Meat, bread and fruit I've put away,

And said I have eschewed,

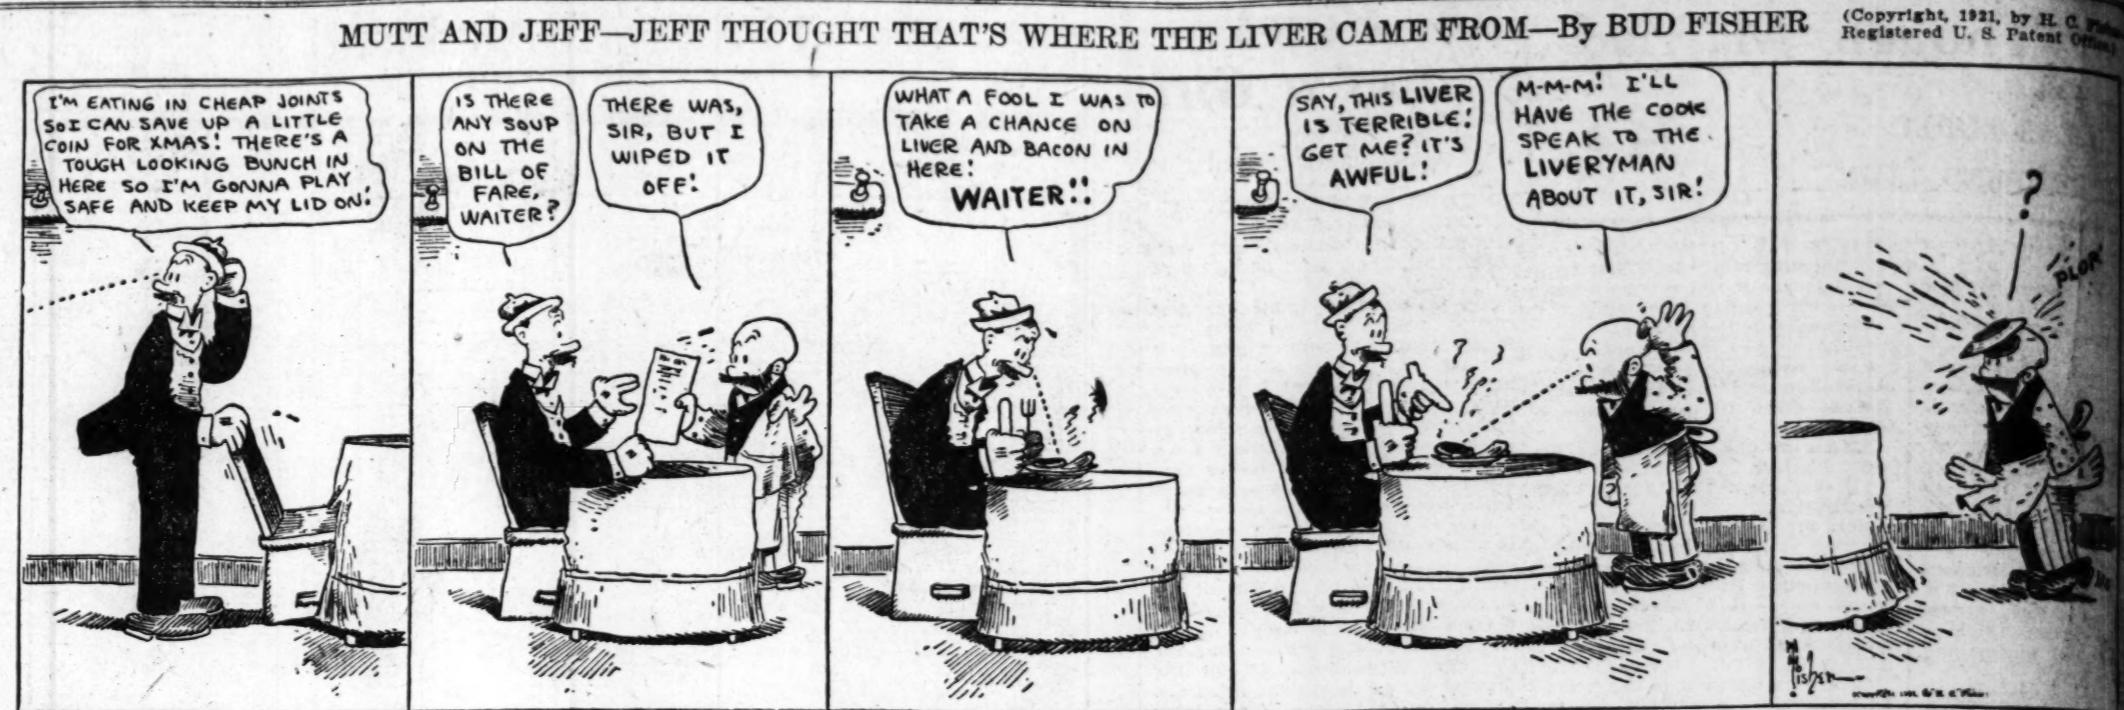

And am fearful that he'll say

To cut out food.

ITALIANS
SUBMARINE
CONFERENCE

Would Call Broader World Session to Protect Powers That Limit Craft's Use, Event of Possible Heavy Tonnage by Lesser States

MORE DISCUSSION
ON RESTRICTION

British Expected to Line Up With Other Delegates Beaten on Plea to Abolish Submarines; Delay French Figures.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Faced with the French delegation to receive expected additional instruction as auxiliary navy craft from its home Government promises to lead to further discussion today of the submarine question by the Washington conference in the single meeting likely to break a pre-Christmas truce.

The further instructions awaited by the French delegation had been received up to noon and it appeared improbable to delegations that they would continue through time to be of use at meeting of the full naval committee set for 3 o'clock. Under a ten-day adjournment the submarine discussions opened yesterday will resume from the British delegation's abolition of submarines automatically will be resumed in even announcement by the French they have nothing to present.

While the various delegations prepared for the afternoon meeting action came from the Italian spokesman through an author spokesman that the earlier conference be arranged soon after the adjournment of the present gathering to take up further the question of auxiliary naval craft.

Point Made by Italians.
The Italians, through their spokesman, made the point that a number of nations having submarines built, building or planned, were represented at the present conference unless brought into agreement with the spirit of the pre-gathering might at compare small outlays, construct sufficient submarine tonnage to maintain feeling of security of the powers represented.

It was conceivable, the Italian spokesman said, that one of the smaller Mediterranean Powers might, at the comparatively low cost of $50,000,000, provide more than $6,000,000 of submarines more than Italy's.

Physical circumstances are holding up the further instructions of the French delegation, said Lord Brian arrived in Paris night and is said to have delayed presentation of the matter at a day meeting to be held during.

Even counting for five hours advance in the favor of Watson, it is not reported as probable that the official cablegram be dispatched before 4 o'clock in the afternoon. When it arrives the telegram must be for consideration by the French delegation.

Unchanged by Lee's Speech.
The Italian attitude is described unchanged by the elaborate statement made against that type of submarine by Lord Lee of the Board of Trade. Italy still wants a considerable amount of submarine and may not be compelled to be prohibited from building large submarines if she cares to, her spokesman said.

Dependent as she is upon supplies of raw materials, and even from far distant countries, should have some submarine large radius of action, her spokesman added.

The spokesman expressed opinion there would be no difficulty whatever in obtaining the assent of the Italian Chamber of Deputies to any agreement reached at present conference.

While the position taken by spokesman of France, Italy, and the United States, indicated the total abolition of submarines, and indication of a similar stand by the United States, failed to meet the Italian's plea for its adoption, the Italian's committee said there still remained the question of whether the Conference
